

Where does Hickleton Collectors' club get its name?

The club is named after one of Sue Ryder Care's specialised neurological care centres, Hickleton Hall in South Yorkshire.

Sue Ryder Care - Hickleton Hall cares for and supports people living with a wide range of neurological conditions including Multiple Sclerosis, Stroke, Parkinson's disease, Motor Neurone Disease, Huntington's Disease and brain injury by providing a range of services that meet their individual needs.

Sue Ryder Care enables them to get the best from their lives, maintaining independence by providing care that adapts to their changing needs as their condition progresses.

Sue Ryder Care

Sue Ryder Care supports people with complex illnesses and conditions including Cancer, Multiple Sclerosis, Parkinson's Disease, Motor Neurone Disease, Huntington's Disease, Brain Injury and Dementia.

The charity is dedicated to helping the people it cares for get the best from life through its specialist palliative care, neurological care and community-based services. Sue Ryder Care's vision is to deliver 'Care that Liberates Lives' - to care for the whole of an individual's needs be they social, psychological, physical or spiritual. Sue Ryder Care also offers support to families of the people it cares for.

Sue Ryder Care is reliant on the generosity of the public to continue to provide specialised palliative and neurological care at its 15 care centres across the UK, both through vital donations of unwanted items and the purchases they make from the charity's 370 shops. With ambitious plans for growth in the next few years, Sue Ryder Care needs to raise as many funds as possible. All quality donations and purchases will help the charity, help more.

Dolls' houses and miniatures purchased at Sue Ryder Care's shops raise invaluable funds for the charity. And, becoming a Hickleton Collectors' Club member is another great way to show your support. Join today and make a real difference to the lives of people who need specialised palliative and neurological care.
